217	I would want to ask J.K. Rowling to speak because she was a woman who started with nothing and is now the richest woman on the planet. She could make a great speaker talking about the trials she went through to become who she is now.	5/11/2014 2:11 PM
218	Idk	5/11/2014 2:01 PM
219	I would invite someone like Oprah, who is an open-minded, influential person. She is someone who has embraced herself and has changed the lives of many by doing so. Therefore, in a time when we are starting our own lives, having someone so strong-willed and who is such a positive energy in the world speak to us would be really powerful.	5/11/2014 1:02 PM

225	Shailene Woodley	5/10/2014 4:31 PM
226	I would invite Hunter Hayes, a country singer to speak at my graduation. Hunter has said in interviews and songs that he has never felt like he never had a place in high school, but he made it. He would be a sort of symbol to show the students that although it was hard, they made it. He could make students feel that feeling out of place is normal.	5/10/2014 4:02 PM
227	Tom Hanks	5/10/2014 12:59 PM

247	selena gomez	5/8/2014 12:08 PM
248	I would invite Malala Yousafasi, the girl who stood up for education in the middle east and was shot by the Taliban. I think it would be good for high-schoolers to see her way of life and for her to realize that she has made a difference and there are people who believe in her cause and want to help we just don't always know what's going on.	5/8/2014 10:04 AM
249	Thora Birch, because she knows alot about life and would inspire others.	5/8/2014 10:03 AM

264	Not sure.	5/6/2014 9:07 AM
265	If I could have one person come to speak in my school, I would have Bill Cosby. Cosby is an successful man who has completed many projects, but graduating high school was not one of them. Unlike many other celebrities who quit high school, he did not give up because his career or stardom was getting in the way. He dropped out simply because he was not doing so well, and he didn't want to continue. It was many years after he dropped out that he became a household name, He is a role model to lots of people, and a very intelligent person. His story lets people know that even though you make mistakes, they don't ruin your whole life.	5/6/2014 7:53 AM
266	i would invite demilovato	5/6/2014 2:46 AM
